DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office Action is the answer to the Request for Continued Examination filed on November 7, 2002, which paper has been placed of record in the file.
2. Claims 34, 35, and 37-42 are canceled. Claims 1-11 are pending in this application.

Response to Arguments/Amendment

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

Specification

4. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it is too long. The abstract should be brief, no longer than 150 words, and on a separate piece of paper. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 3628

6. Claims 2-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

“The transaction service provider” (line 1, claims 2-11) lack of antecedent basis.

Correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Walker et al, U.S. Patent No. 5,794,207.

Regarding to claim 1, Walker discloses a service provider for administering a plurality of accounts for a client, comprising:

a computer, having a processor, a data storage medium, and a network port (see figure 2, items 205, 250, 245);

the storage medium configured to store the client's personal information, account information, and transactional information (column 13, lines 1-10, 23-35, 63-67, Buyer database 255, Buyer account 297, CPO database, Counteroffer database);

the processor configured to:

create a database of client information including the client's personal information, account information corresponding to a plurality of accounts associated with the client, and transactional information corresponding to plurality of transactions conducted by the client (column 13, lines 1-10, 23-35, 63-67, Buyer database 255, Buyer account 297, CPO database, Counteroffer database); designate as confidential a predetermined first portion of the database client information (column 13, lines 1-10); designate as non-confidential a predetermined second portion of the database of client information non-confidential (column 13, lines 23-30); provide the client with access to the predetermined first and second portions of the database of client information via the network port (column 17, lines 27-47 and column 22, line 52-column 23, line 17).

provide a plurality of vendors with access to the predetermined second portion of the database of client information via the network port (column 18, lines 55-column 19, line 12);

Walker does not directly teach deny access for the plurality of vendors to the predetermined first portion of the database of client information. However, restricting some particular people access to a specific database is well known in the art. Moreover, nowhere in Walker's teaches that the sellers can access to buyer database or buyer account database, the sellers can only access to the CPO database to bind to CPO submitted by the buyers. Therefore, it would have been obvious in Walker's that central controller does not allow the sellers access to the buyer database for the security purpose, to protect the buyer confidential information.

Regarding to claim 2, Walker further discloses the storage medium is further configured to store information corresponding to the plurality of vendors; and the processor is further configured to: create a database of vendor information; receive a transaction request from a client; analyze information in the database; analyze information in the database of vendor information; analyze information in the database of client information; provide a suggested transaction to the client based on the information in the database of vendor information and the database of client information (column 12, line 54-column 14, line 7).

Regarding to claim 3, Walker further discloses the processor is further configured to: establish communication with a vendor via the network port; disclose information from the predetermined second portion of the database of client information to the vendor; receive information from the vendor; provide information received from the vendor to the client (column 18, line 55-column 19, line 60).

Regarding to claim 4, Walker further discloses the processor is further configured to: establish a communications with a service institution via the network port; receive transaction information corresponding to the client from the service institution; add the transactional information received from the service institution to the database of client information (column 21, lines 29-37).

Art Unit: 3628

Regarding to claim 5, Walker further discloses the processor is further configured to: establish communication with the client via the network port; receive information from the client; and add the information received from the client to the database of client information (column 15, line 60-column 16, line 65).

Regarding to claims 6-9, Walker further discloses the information received from the client includes transaction information, personal information, account information, promotional information (column 13, lines 1-10, 23-35, 63-67).

Regarding to claim 10, Walker further discloses the processor is further configured to establish communication with an electronic transaction device and transactional information is received from the electronic transaction device (column 12, lines 40-53).

Regarding to claim 11, Walker further discloses the processor is further configured to: establish communications with a service institution via the network port; receive information corresponding to the client from the service institution; add the information received from the service institution to the database of client information; establish communication with the client via the network port; receive information from the client; add the information received from the client to the database of client information; and reconcile the information received from the service institution with the information received from the client (column 17, lines 27-47);

Conclusion

9. Claims 1-11 are rejected.
